

KZN MANAGED FUND

OCTOBER 2024

The KZN Managed Fund is a moderately aggressive fund that aims to achieve above average returns over the longer term.

The fund can invest across all local and foreign asset classes. The fund makes use of a blend of three good quality asset managers who have been given fully discretionary global balanced mandates. These asset managers have the freedom to select the allocation to each of these asset classes and the most attractive securities to invest in within each asset class. A portion of the fund is managed on a strategic asset allocation basis, where the long term allocation between the various asset classes have been set, taking into account the fund's long term aim. Specialist asset managers have been appointed to manage each of the asset classes and have the freedom to select the most attractive securities to invest in within each asset class.

Due to its relatively high allocation to growth assets (such as local and foreign shares and private equity), the fund has a high chance of capital loss in the short term, but is expected to achieve real growth of capital over the long-term. As a result, the fund is best suited to members who have a longer term (5 years or more) investment horizon.

The portfolio complies with the prudential investment guidelines set out in Regulation 28 of the Pensions Funds Act.

MONTHLY COMMENTARY

Globally, our investment funds have been overweight the US market, with no allocations to emerging markets (EMs) - over the past year to mid-October, the US market has outperformed EMs by 13%. And despite a strong EM showing in September, the US market recovered to relative highs by mid-October, prompting a strategic adjustment: we reduced US equity holdings to a neutral position and allocated a small portion to EMs. Although still underweight EMs, this positions us to capitalise on an environment that has historically favoured EMs. These positive factors include lower US interest rates, falling EM inflation, recovering EM earnings growth and China's turnaround. Despite China being a long-term structural underweight due to concerns over private sector property rights and its focus on "common prosperity", China is at a turning point. Recent policy-easing measures - including monetary stimulus, property market support and adjustments in capital requirements - will boost growth, but consumer confidence remains a key hurdle. Regardless, a recovery in China's growth will have positive spillover effects on its neighbours and trade partners, benefitting broader emerging markets. However, we remain underweight emerging markets until we have further clarity on two points: the magnitude of new tariffs and their impact on China and global trade in the event of a Trump victory in the US presidential election; and China's growth uncertainty, as we wait to see what additional stimulus measures are introduced by China's cautious and data-dependent authorities.

South Africa's Medium Term Budget Policy Statement was announced on 30 October, with unexpected fiscal slippage reported on both the revenue and expense sides. Debt is now expected to peak at 75.5% of gross domestic product in 2026, compared to the previous forecast of 75.3%.

The upcoming US presidential election is generating significant uncertainty. Under a Trump presidency, the implementation of higher import tariffs could negatively affect global growth, potentially reducing it by 0.7% according to the International Monetary Fund. If Republicans achieve a "red sweep", supportive fiscal policies and tariffs could bolster US growth and strengthen the dollar; however, this might also lead to accelerated inflation and delay Federal Reserve rate cuts. Conversely, a split Congress - regardless of which party holds the presidency - would likely result in legislative gridlock, maintaining the status quo and limiting additional debt accumulation and market impacts.

The FTSE/JSE Capped SWIX Index dropped 0.9%, Industrials and Financials were down 3.0% and 0.7%. The JSE All Bond Index sank 2.2%, while the Rand weakened 2.6% against the Dollar.
