

KZN ISLAMIC FUND

APRIL 2026

The KZN Islamic Fund is a moderately aggressive fund that aims to provide steady long term returns and capital growth.

The fund is invested in a wide variety of domestic and international asset classes such as equity, sukuks and listed property. The selected asset managers have the freedom to select the allocation to each of these asset classes and the most attractive securities to invest in within each asset class.

The underlying investments will comply with Sharia requirements as prescribed by the Accounting and Auditing Organisation for Islamic Financial Institutions (AAOIFI) as well as the prudential investment guidelines set out in Regulation 28 of the Pensions Funds Act.

Due to its relatively high allocation to growth assets, the fund has a high chance of capital loss in the short term, but is expected to achieve real growth of capital over the long term. As a result, the fund is best suited to members who have a longer term (5 years or more) investment horizon.

This fund is suitable for Muslim investors requiring a Sharia-compliant portfolio appropriate for retirement schemes.

MONTHLY COMMENTARY

Markets broke to new highs last week, driven by two reinforcing forces: geopolitical de-escalation and strong momentum in artificial intelligence (AI). The key catalysts both occurred on 7 April, when the US announced a ceasefire in the Middle East and Anthropic unveiled its latest model, Mythos, reigniting investor appetite for AI-related themes. The strength within the theme has been striking - 74% of AI-related stocks have subsequently outperformed the broader market. Overall S&P 500 breadth has narrowed to just 26%, however - a dangerously low level. The divergence is telling: this is not a broad-based bull market but a theme-driven rally resting on a narrow and concentrated leadership base.

Oil touched $126 per barrel, its highest level since 2022, amid reports that the US is considering military action against Iran to break a deadlock in peace talks. Despite Trump extending the 7 April two-week US-Iran ceasefire indefinitely, the US military has maintained its blockade of the Strait of Hormuz, which Iran regards as a contravention of the ceasefire terms. Iran has presented a revised peace proposal in which nuclear negotiations are deferred to a later stage, but Trump insists that any deal must address Iran's nuclear programme.

Oil continues to flow, through longer, rerouted passages at materially higher insurance premiums - and it will take weeks for ships to arrive at their destinations even after the strait is open again. The International Energy Agency (IEA) has warned that prices do not yet fully reflect the true severity of the supply disruption. Thirteen million barrels per day have been taken offline, with more than 80 energy facilities damaged - more than 10% of global capacity. IEA Executive Director Fatih Birol cautioned that a full recovery could take up to two years.

The economic scars of the conflicts are likely to outlast the fighting itself. A notable regional divergence is expected depending on how the commodity price surge affects countries' terms of trade. Energy exporters - the US, Canada, Norway - stand to fare relatively better; energy importers - Japan, Europe and most emerging markets - face a more difficult adjustment. We increased global equities on the ceasefire announcement, as a recession remains unlikely; this has worked well thanks to the AI rally, but we remain cautious on the outlook.

The FTSE/JSE CAPI Index advanced by 1.6%, while Industrials gained 3.0% and Financials rose 4.3%. The JSE All Bond Index increased by 3.3% and the Rand strengthened 2.4% against the Dollar.
